FLOATING IN THE RIVER.

Body of Mrs. Amanda Flanders of Franklin, N. H., Found in the Merrimack.

Franklin, N. H., May 29.—The body of Mrs. Amanda Flanders, who disappeared from home four weeks ago last Sunday night, was found seven miles down the Merrimack river near the Merrimack county farm yesterday afternoon.

Frank Caswell, an inmate of the county farm, who has been interested in the search for the body in the river, has watched the stream for many hours since the announcement was made, April 29, that the woman's cloak was found on the bank of the stream near the Franklin Needle factory.

Yesterday he believed that the high water in the river would bring the body down and he watched the swollen stream for a good part of the day and finally discovered the body about twenty feet from shore on some branches sticking up out of the water. Superintendent Milton of the farm was notified and a message was sent to City Marshal Buchanan, who arranged to have the body brought to a local undertaking establishment to be prepared for burial. It was somewhat decomposed, but acquaintances of the woman found no difficulty in identifying her.

Mrs. Flanders was 52 years of age and was a native of Hill. She is survived by four children. The funeral will be held today, only prayers at the grave being said.

Is Being Dispensed in the United States,
Heard in England.

London, May 29.—The London newspapers generally make a display of the facts regarding the use of tainted meat in the United States, but only two of them comment upon the revelations, apparently accepting the cabined statements that the bad food is sold mainly in the United States and is not exported.

McGOVERN PUT IT OVER
JIMMY BRITT LAST NIGHTAfter the Ten Round Bout in New York
Both the Pugilists Were Arrested and Then Released.

New York, May 29.—Terry McGovern of Brooklyn surprised everybody last night by his wonderful showing against Jimmy Britt of California in a 10-round bout before the Twentieth Century club in the Madison Square Garden in the presence of 4,000 persons. Tim Hurst was the referee, but as no decision can be given under the laws governing boxing in this state, the spectators had to judge for themselves as to the relative merits of the men.

Immediately after the fight both the principals, Manager Harry Pollock, Referee Hurst and 10 others were arrested by Deputy Police Commissioners Matiot and Waldo, charged with participating in and conducting a prize fight.

McGovern was the choice of the big majority, while none of the most sanguine of Britt's friends claimed anything better than a draw for the Californian. McGovern was not trained down as he had been on other occasions. Britt looked to be in much the better condition and was about five pounds lighter than the Brooklyn man. The style of the men differed. Britt was clever and shifty and ducked away from some hard swings. McGovern stuck to his old ball dog style of fighting.

There was considerable clinching, holding and in-fighting, but whenever they indulged in a mix-up Terry had the better of it. Britt landed several hard jabs on McGovern's head and face, but McGovern did not appear to suffer much from those stinging blows. He was always on the alert for an opening to land a swing or hook and got in a few which shook up the western man.

McGovern opened up a gash over Britt's right eye with a left hook in the second round and in each succeeding round the cut was reopened with jabs or hooks. Britt was bleeding from the nose and McGovern's right eye was puffed up at the end of the sixth round. It was a hurricane fight all the way through, and McGovern had the upper hand in every round but one after the opening round, in which honors were pretty even.

The final round found Terry forcing the pace and they were fighting at close quarters when the bell ended the fight.

On finishing their bout and retiring to their dressing rooms, both were placed under arrest. They were not given time to change their ring costumes for street clothes and were taken to the West 30th street police station in cabs, clad only in fighting togs and raincoats. At the station house all were released on bail.

SIX TO A DRAW.

Ruhlin and Ferguson Fought in New York City.

New York, May 29.—Gus Ruhlin of Akron, O., and Sandy Ferguson of Boston, both heavyweight pugilists, fought six rounds to a draw at the Marlborough Athletic Club last night. Charles White was referee, but no decision was given. It was a hard and fast fight for both men.

Neither of them was trained to the fighting notch, and while Ferguson was the cleverer, Ruhlin had the punch to offset this advantage.

Ruhlin was knocked down once and Ferguson twice.

LOOKING AFTER FITZ.

Pennsylvania Governor Trying to Prevent His Fight.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 29.—Governor Pennypacker last evening directed Captain Groome, superintendent of the state police, to send a squad of policemen last night to North Easton, Delaware county, near Philadelphia, to prevent the scheduled fight between Bob Fitzsimmons and Tommy Burns, in the club rooms of the Tuxedo athletic association.

KILLED WITH A CUE.

Plymouth, Mass., Man Laid Low With One Blow.

Plymouth, Mass., May 29.—Joseph Lodi one of the most respected Italian residents of this town, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon and Antonio Boleiri is under arrest under the charge of murdering him.

Lodi, who owned a number of houses on Cherry street and runs a pool room there, was playing a friendly game late yesterday with Boleiri, when the police allege that without any provocation Boleiri struck him on the back of the head with the butt of the cue, killing him instantly. He then struck him several times.

There were a number of people in the room at the time and all rushed at Boleiri. Lodi's son Joseph struck at Boleiri with a cue, but Boleiri caught the cue and broke it. In the scuffle Boleiri got a cut on his arm and a half long on his head.

He got away from the crowd and ran to his boarding place on Standish ave. Officer A. J. Hogan went to Boleiri's room and arrested him after a lively fight.

Burlington, May 29.—The original petition for divorce of Mrs. Merrow vs. Dr. J. W. Merrow was discontinued in Chittenden county court today. Again Censured.

Burlington, May 29.—Humane Agent John Fuller found Dr. H. E. Read of Shelburne driving a lame horse on South Union street yesterday afternoon. Mr. Fuller did not think that the horse was in a fit condition to be driven or worked and told Dr. Read so. Mr. Fuller followed the team down Pearl street to the head of Church, where Mrs. Read, who was riding with the doctor, alighted from the wagon and Dr. Read drove the horse on to a livery stable.

Later Dr. Read drove the horse about the streets again. Mr. Fuller stated that the horse was so lame that he could not run any faster than Mr. Fuller could walk, in spite of inducements from the doctor's whip. Mr. Fuller told Dr. Read that if he drove or worked the horse any more he would bring another suit against him.

CROOKED WORK UNCOVERED.

In Erasures in Party Affiliation Slips in Burlington.

Burlington, May 29.—The allegation was made last night at the meeting of the board of civil authority that erasures had been made on the slips signed by voters declaring their intentions as to how they would vote in coming caucuses by people other than those who signed the slips. Seven such erasures have been discovered and the check list has only been partially covered. The slips were originally signed with a pencil. The erasure was made on the line where the party affiliation was declared and the name of a party was written in with a pen in a different handwriting.

But one of the voters whose party declaration had been made has thus far appeared but the others have been notified to come before the board. John Clay informed City Clerk McAlonan that he declared himself a democrat and his slip was one of the number that had been changed.

There is of course no way of telling who made the changes but that there has been crooked work somewhere the members of the board of civil authority do not doubt. The board will meet again next Friday night.

COW CAUSED COLLISION
AT CLAREMONT CURVEFifteen Persons Hurt in Rear End Crash
on Boston & Maine R. R. Yesterday Afternoon.

Concord, N. H., May 29.—A rear-end collision between two passenger trains occurred at 3.30 p. m. yesterday on the Claremont branch of the Concord division of the Boston & Maine, a mile and a half above West Concord. The train for Claremont, consisting of locomotive, baggage car, combination mail and smoking car and a day coach, left the station on time, at 3.15 o'clock, and was followed five minutes later by the train for Peterboro. The makeup of the Peterboro train was locomotive, combination mail, baggage and smoker, and passenger car.

The Claremont train ran over a cow, the body of which lodged under the forward trucks of the baggage car. Brake-man Spalding ran back to flag the Peterboro train, but only a short distance from his train he saw the Peterboro train rounding the curve at rapid speed. The locomotive of the Peterboro train was in charge of Engineer E. R. Melvin, with John Young as fireman, both of Windham, Mass.

Engineer Melvin made every effort to stop, but the distance was too short, and the locomotive struck the rear of the Claremont train, burying its nose in the interior of the car, in which between 40 and 60 people had been riding. Fortunately most of them had alighted to find out "what the matter was." Some had hurried to the front, and others made their escape from the car when they saw the approaching train.

Engineer Melvin stuck to his post, and was badly cut and scalded and injured about the hips. His fireman jumped to the tender, but was thrown down and had a rib broken. Conductor Mann of the Peterboro train had his arm severely lacerated. Master Daniel sustained severe bruises.

The platforms on all the cars of the Claremont train were smashed, and the tender was damaged. The locomotive of the Peterboro train was badly wrecked and the rear trucks were derailed. The wrecking train was sent from here with Drs. G. F. Conn, F. A. Stillings and L. A. Sanders. They returned with the passengers, who were brought here by a special train.

Fifteen injured persons were taken to the Margaret Pillsbury hospital.

TALK OF THE TOWN.

Arthur Nicora of Quincy, Mass., arrived in the city yesterday to work for Rizzi Bros.

Mrs. W. J. McLean and children went to Burlington this afternoon for a two weeks' visit at the home of her parents.

Mrs. Leroy Thorpe and child of Lisbon, N. H., arrived in this city this noon for a visit at the home of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Cummings.

Winfield Hauflin, Drown's son-in-law, has shown his patriotism in draping everything about his soda fountain in the stars and stripes. He is even putting out a drink for Memorial day called the "Army and Navy."

Ira Batchelder of Plainfield came to Barre today for a short visit. He still maintains that "Winfield" beats "em all" in having the most oldest people and that Groton is far behind, although it does claim a dozen over 80 years.

The case of John Canning, who is alleged to have committed a breach of the peace in Hale's pavilion on May 12th, is being tried in city court today before the following jury: James Brown, Edward Cheaser, S. D. Allen, E. E. Perry, H. K. Bush and Donald McLeod.

NO PAPER TOMORROW.

Tomorrow, Memorial day, no paper will be issued from this office. Thursday's Times will contain full reports of the day's observance.

ARE PROMISED
BETTER THINGSWilliamstown Branch Will Be Repaired

AND THAT IMMEDIATELY

Another Wreck This Morning Comes at Same Time Announcement of Central Vermont Intentions Is Received.

A frequent occurrence—a wreck—on the Williamstown branch of the Central Vermont R. R.—happened again this morning when the eight o'clock train went off the iron just below the Bassett street crossing above Foster street. The passengers who were in the coach at the rear of the train were thrown from their seats but no one was hurt. The train was made up of two flat and three box cars and the passenger coach. A refrigerator car in the middle of the train was the only car that left the rails. This car, after climbing the iron, plowed up the ties for several feet and finally broke away from the rest of the train, and, swinging around, rammed into the bank beside the track. The wheels were torn from the car and the rear end smashed through the next box car behind. There was no apparent reason why the car climbed the rails as the car behind the derailed one followed the rails by the place where the wrecked car first left the iron.

Were it not for an assurance from Faller O. Smith, chairman of the state railroad commission, received this morning, the patience of the public would be tried this time beyond all endurance. Faller O. Smith says that the road is to be repaired and repaired at once. This assurance came in response to a letter of inquiry from State's Attorney Jackson following the failure of the Central Vermont to make the necessary repairs to this branch after double warning by the railroad commission and more frequent warnings in the nature of accidents. The last annual report of the commission severely scored the company for its negligence with the Williamstown branch, and last fall when a special hearing was held on the accident, in which Conductor S. R. Colby was seriously injured by taking a plunge down a 20-foot embankment with a derailed train, the commission took occasion to impose an even more insistent demand that repairs be made. But affairs went along as usual and people continued the practice of pulling spikes with their fingers and replacing them in the same way.

Then the state's attorney wrote Chairman Smith of the railroad commission asking if it would not be a good plan to make a test case of the matter. Mr. Smith's reply received today, states that General Manager G. C. Jones of the Central Vermont gave him the information that they were to start this week to repair the Williamstown branch, and from another source Mr. Smith gleaned that the Claremont train will be repaired and put in good condition. It is certain that nothing but this will place the road in a decently passable condition.

SHALL WE HAVE BASE BALL?

If You Think "Yes" Let Your Money
Talk for You.

It is up to Barre to raise $700 for the support of the Intercity base ball team this summer, and the money must be secured here. A like amount is being raised in Montpelier, and a part team secured and with the players quartered in Barre there is every incentive why Barre should come to its support. The fans and enthusiasts must "loosen up." The local directors, Donald W. Smith, George W. Gorman and N. J. Roberts, and the treasurer, Charles H. Wishart, are to visit as many of the people as they can to help them along. They will go to town and make their contributions. If you do not feel that you can afford to take full shares of stock, then go into partnership with someone else. At least give something. This is necessary if we are to see the sport we have had for the past two years.

LANE GRANTED TRANSFER.

But Bissora's Held Up Because Building
Is Not Yet Up.

The license commissioners of Barre Town met at East Barre yesterday to act on the applications of Grant Lane of South Barre and E. H. Bissora of East Barre for transfers of their licenses to sell liquor. Mr. Lane was granted a transfer across the street at South Barre, but the application of Mr. Bissora was held up because the building to which he asked to be transferred was not yet erected.

A DRAWING EXHIBIT.

By the Public School Children Friday and Saturday Afternoons.

The exhibit of public school drawing will be open to visitors from 1 to 6 o'clock, both Friday and Saturday afternoons of this week in the two basement rooms of the Mathewson school building on the Elm street side. Last year's exhibit was so well attended and so highly appreciated that the teachers were encouraged to present this year a smaller amount of better work. Consequently fewer children are represented but the work comes nearer to the standard of what should be done the third year after its introduction.

It should be borne in mind that a public school drawing course of only one and one-half hours per week cannot turn out artists or skilled draftsmen; it can only introduce children to their opportunities. Its real purpose is a part of school training is to bring children into closer relationship with their environment, by training their observation, developing their taste and their power to judge relations, as well as the skill to express these.

To this end the drawing is carried along three distinct lines—representation, construction and decoration. In all grades about one-third of the time is spent in training pupils to see things correctly as they appear in different positions and different lights. They come into closer communion with nature when they study the life and growth of flowers and fruits and the beauty of the landscape. Their study of animal life and action and the proportions of the human figure aims to give them greater respect for the body and its wonderful mechanism. Every year they have practice in cylinder and rectangle, perspective by drawing common objects based upon these types.

They take their first steps in mechanical construction in the simple folding and cutting exercises of the primary departments. This is continued through the making of patterns for objects based upon different type forms, working drawings telling all the necessary facts of an object, machine drawings, the plan and elevations of the school room, and a house drawn to different scales. This is accompanied with the planning and lettering of titles and texts. Simple manual training exercises are given outside of school to those reaching a given standard along certain lines of construction and decoration. In this way the children are introduced to the various ways in which they may apply what they have learned and they acquire a degree of patience and persistence in finishing what they have begun, that is not so well accomplished in the limited school period.

Decoration is taught from the simplest elements and colors in the primary grades and settles up through the ornament derived from nature and historic ornament enlarged or reduced a given number of times, to pure design with abstract spots for elements. In connection with decoration, pupils are taught its application to such common objects as boxes, flower pots, booklets, lanterns, scrap baskets and cushion covers.

It takes many years to develop an appreciation of color harmony and pencil technique, so while the work of the upper grades is much better in these lines this year than last, they are still far below the standard than any other phase of the drawing course. With this explanation in mind, it is hoped that all interested in the work will visit the exhibit Friday and Saturday afternoons. Saturday forenoon is reserved for the school children.

COURT ON WHEELS
IN LIQUOR CASESouth Barre's Main Street Was the Meeting Place—A. L. Foster's
Case Continued to Next Week.

The somewhat novel experience of holding court in the street was the order at South Barre yesterday afternoon, when A. L. Foster was before Justice A. Gay as the result of the seizure of 123 bottles of Jamaica ginger at his Graniteville store Saturday night. Justice Fay and State's Attorney Jackson drove to South Barre and met the respondent and his lawyer, Ben Gates of Montpelier, strolling along the street. They pulled up and after some preliminary parleying the presiding officer made the motion for a continuance of the case of State vs. Intoxicating Liquor to next week. Without getting out of his carriage, the court ordered the continuance; the same bonds of $100, furnished by Thomas Cleary, being honored. This done, the court turned about and returned to Barre.

State's Attorney Jackson was then called to Montpelier to prosecute William Snell, who is charged with poisoning cattle of C. A. Watson in Woodbury Center. This case was also continued until after Memorial day. Snell is alleged to have served Poison in the pasture, where the cows were feeding. Three cows and two calves died last week, and an investigation of the pasture disclosed the poison. Suspicion fell on Snell, a neighbor, and his arrest was made on Sunday. It is said that the heart of feeling does not exist between Watson and Snell. Bill was fixed at $500.
